The Amendments

A correspondent of a county paper gives the following reason why the constitutional amendments to be voted on Tuesday, September 22, should be rejected by the voters.

It is proposed to amend section 4 of Article VI of the Constitution by inserting in lieu of paragraph 10, which reads as follows: "The Court of Chancery shall consist of a Chanceller," s new paragraph as follows:

1. The Court of Chancery shall consist of a Chancellor and such number of Vice-Chancellors as shall be provided by law, each of whom may exercise the jurisdiction of the court; the court shall make rules governing the hearing of causes and the practice of the court where the same is not regulated by

Mr. William H. Corbin of the Hudson County ber says: "Just how this change will work can not be confidently foretold. * * * We will, in effect, have seven or eight Chancellors instead of one. What special power, if any, the Chancellor will have that a Vice-Chancellor does not possess is not clear, and may, to some extent, depend upon statutes which may be passed. Probably there will be little difference. and, as the Chancery judges do not sit together, but separately, it is difficult to see how there is to be any difference."

Now will be observed that in the proposed amendments relating to the Court of Chancery each of the Vice-Chancellors may exercise the jurisdiction of the court; and, as Mr. Corbin says, " We will, in effect, have seven or eight Chancellors instead of one." Let us see how this will work in practice. I wish to secure an injunction; I go to Chancellor Pitney, and, submitting my affidavit to him, get my injunction. The party enjoined thinks that Chancellor Pitney is wrong, and he pro- reveals every phase of the extraordinary eures counsel to go before Chancellor personality of Oulda's heroine. Miss Stevens for the purpose of securing, a Kennark is splendidly supported by a dissolution of the injunction. Chancellor Stevens, " exercising the jurisdiction of the court" (to use the language of the proposed amendment), believing that Chancellor Pitney is wrong, dissolves the Pitney injunction. I then resolve to try another Chancellor and apply to Chancellor Grey for an injunction, the same to all intents and purposes that Chancellor Pitney granted and Chancellor Grey grants the injunction. My adversary, not in the the Grey injunction. It is easy to see that we shall have our seven or eight Chancellors playing at battledore and shuttlecook around the State with their orders and counter-orders, and the Court of Chandery, consisting of seven or eight Chancellors, each exercising the jurisdiction of the court, will soon lose the respect not only of the bar, but of the people. The proposed amendment says that the Court of Chancery shall consist of the Chancellor and such Vice Chancellors as may be authorized by law, yet least discouraged, applies to Chancellor

Reed, who "exercises the jurisdiction

Chancellor Ocey is wrong, dissolves

each of the Vice-Chancellora may exercise the jurisdiction of "the court." Mr. Corbin says: "The Chancery judges do not sit together, but separate-We shall have then a Court of Chancery consisting of seven or eight Chancellors not sitting together as sourt, but each of them "flocking by himself" and "exercising the juris-liction of the court." It is extremely doubtful whether, under the wording of this amendment the Vice Chancellors can sit separately for the bearing of causes, because the Court of Chancery is to consist of the Chancellor and such Vice-Chancellors as may be authorized by law.

Now, why should we give up the Court of Chancery as it now exists? The court consists of one Chancellor, but he has aix assistants, whose orders and decrees stand as the orders and decrees of the Chancellor. They are practically members of the Court of Chancery. The Vice-Chancellors are respected as Chancery judges. There is no jarring—everything has worked smoothly. Why then, venture upon this experiment—this change—of which Mr. Corbin truly observes, "just how it will work cannot confidently be foretold"?

I think enough has been said to show that the proposed amendments reorgan-izing the Court of Errors and Appeals and the Court of Chancery should be "A Princess of Kensington " is a genuine comic opera, admirably repdered, and its music is by far the most rhythmical, melodious and pleasing of any that has been brought over from London since the days of The Gelsha,"

The fun-making is led by James T Powers, who as "William Jeff." sallorman, gives a capital humorous characterization of a jolly British tar, His several souge are emphatic hits and are demanded and redemanded at every performance. It is seldom. ever, that an opera has been mounted on a more magnificent and artistic scale than has this one, and Manager John C. Pisher has spent a small fortune in equipping "A Princess of Kensington." The engagement at the Broadway Theatre is limited to eight weeks. Empire Theatre.

The superb production of Paul M Potter's version of Oulda's world-famous novel, "Under Two Flags," will be the offering at the Empire Theatre the week beginning September 21. The production is identically the same as played for ten months in New York to a succession of the largest audiences ever witnessed at a dramatic production. Jane Kennark is seen as Cigarette and her acting of the role of the little vivandlere is a revelation. The character of the passionate, wayward daughter of the regiment affords Miss Kennark unusual scope for the display of her ability, and she succeeds in giving a portrayal that cast of unusual strength and upwards of one hundred people participate in the the climb over Schooley's Mountain performance.

There are sixty doses in a visi that can be carried in the west pocket or purse, and every one has more medicinal power than a big pill or tablet or a tumbler of mineral water. "I am still selling the specific at half-price, sithough I cannot tell how long I shall be able to do so, and any one who is subject to constipation, sick headache, dizziness, liver trouble, indigestion, or a general played-out condi-tion, ought to take advantage of this chance. You can tell your readers that if they are not satisfied with the specific they can come right back to my store and I will obserfully refund their money "-Advt.

Fast Travelling.

Thomas A. Edison travelled in his wonderfully constructed automobile from Orange to the Edison Cement Mills near Phillipsburg to less time than the regular passenger train made in going the same distance last week. The record-breaking trip in his big white travelling car was made with Chauffeur Warren in charge of the machine. Mr. Edleon, Mr. Mason and two other friends were the occupants.

The inventor said, on arriving at his cement mills shead of the Luckawanna train which left Orange at the same time, that mile after mile the big thirty-five horse power auto sped over fact that the cross-country trip included makes the run all the more remarkable.

BEAR THIS IN MIND.

Never let it be forgotten that the building and loan association is primarily a money-saving institution and only incidentally a money-making organization. Therefore safety and not profit should be the first concern to its management.

ACQUIRE HABIT OF SAVINGE No matter how small the salary, some portion of it should be saved each

No man can prosper who does not spend less than he makes.

Whether a man be rich or poor, there is for everyone in this life the lesson of self-denial to learn. The process of saving may be slow, but it is sure. The proper way is the systematic one by which individuals place regularly an amount in some good building association.

SALARIED MEN LARGELY IN THE MAJORITY,

The salaried man should have thought for the future, as well as the man who has his own business. To save one must have a definite, fixed method. The experience of others is a teliable guide board, whose friendly arms point to the building and loan association as a safe form for investment. The mainstay of building associations are wage earners, but professional and business men form quite a proportion of the membership. The best thing for young men or young women to do when they first begin to earn money for themselves is to join a building association and save a dollar or two every week from their salary, or as much as they can spare from their income, and thus prepare for the future.
